

NATURAL NAVIGATION

When you're out exploring without a compass, you can still find your way using nature clues! The sun is a great helper. In the morning, it comes up in the east, like a wake-up alarm. In the afternoon, it naps in the west. If you face the sun with your left hand towards the east and your right hand towards the west, you're facing north! Trees and plants can also help. Moss often grows on the north side of trees, like a cozy green blanket. Nature is like a big map – you just need to pay attention to its hints, and you'll be an awesome natural navigator!
